"We have so many Brent® wheels, we couldn't get them all in one picture."

—Annie Swantko, Annie's Mud Pie Shop, Cincinnati, OH.

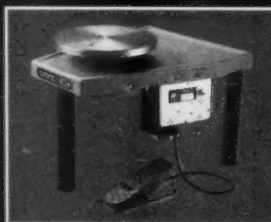

For dependability and consistent performance, Annie Swantko relies on Brent® CXC wheels — a lot of them! Her pottery studio and supply house has amassed 51 Brent® CXC wheels in just three years. "We teach the public how to throw, and the Brent® wheels have held up well through a steady workout by over 2,000 students and studio rental customers" according to Annie. "We tried other brands and found they fell apart under the stress of public use. We have full confidence in our Brent® wheels."

No other wheel performs to the standards of the CXC. Powered by a tough 1-hp motor, it features a smooth 0-240 rpm foot pedal, reversing switch, and motor silencer. Supported by all-steel construction, the CXC can easily center 100 lbs. of clay on a 14-inch wheel head.

Annie with her very first Brent® wheel, a third-hand kick wheel that is "still going strong."

Powerful and dependable, today's Brent® CXC is the standard of the industry.

8 Reasons Why Canopy Hoods are Tops for Kiln Ventilation

3-Year
Warranty

- Hoods positioned above the kiln capture the upward flow of hot air and fumes.
- Does not upset the firing balance.
- No cold spots.
- No delay in heat-up: no reduction in firing temperature.
- No motor vibration.
- No modification of kiln.
- Available in both positive and negative pressure systems.
- A canopy hood is the recommended way to vent fumes, meeting applicable OSHA standards.
